

I am quite concerned over the possibility of rule changes to Low Power FM.

I currently listen to K-LOVE which broadcasts over these FM translators. It is the only station in my area which plays Christian music. It is also the only station in my area that I feel is safe to have on with my four year old daughter, with the exception of the classical station. The other radio stations often have inappropriate language and lyrics for a 4 year old, and quite frankly I often find them offensive myself. I never have to worry about what we will hear when I have K-LOVE on.

If K-LOVE were to be displaced by a different type of programming, I would most likely rarely listen to the radio anymore and just stick to CDs.

I believe that K-LOVE serves the public interest because it provides uplifting music and commentary for both Christians and non-Christians and it is also a safe station for the whole family to hear.

Please do not change the regulations so that K-LOVE and other stations already broadcasting over current FM translators can be bumped off of the air. Leave us something safe to listen to.

Thank you.
